

Building a future for graduate destinations

Monday 4th July 2016

#NewDLHE

9.00 - Chair's welcome and introduction

Mark Leach, Director and Editor in Chief, Wonkhe

9.10 - Introduction to HESA's DLHE review

Paul Clark, Chief Executive and Dan Cook, Head of Collections Development, HESA

9.35 - Past, present and future graduate labour markets

Charlie Ball, Head of Higher Education Intelligence, Graduate Prospects

10.00 - Panel Debate: What does success in the labour market look like? And what are the implications for measurement?

Sorana Vieru, Vice President (Higher Education), NUS

Mary Stuart, Vice Chancellor, University of Lincoln

Stephen Isherwood, Chief Executive, Association of Graduate Recruiters

Break 10.45

11.05 - Shaping outcomes and building a strategy

How far should the data shape what we do? What are the measurement options? How should it be disseminated and promoted to support student choice?

James Evans, Senior Research Manager, CFE Research

Terry Dray, Director of Graduate Advancement, Liverpool John Moores University

12:00 - The future of surveying graduate outcomes

What is the government's plan for LEO and earnings data? What are the potential opportunities and limits of data linking earnings and outcomes? How can the costs and benefits of a survey be maximised? What are the risks and opportunities of centralisation?

Gary Sprules, Director of Planning, University of the Arts London

Additional speaker TBA

12.45 - Concluding remarks

End 13.00